Over the last few weeks Alabama has been the focus of global attention because of the case of BSE discovered in Alabama. I hope that you were able to learn more about BSE, commonly called "mad cow," and what the Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries and the USDA are doing to help protect you and your families. While there has been a lot of good information out there, there was also a lot of confusing information circulated by a few people who don't understand BSE, or animal identification. I'd like to try and provide some answers to some of the questions you may have.

First, why do we need an animal identification program? Here are a few reasons: an animal ID program will improve animal disease surveillance, control and eradication; it would enhance biosecurity therefore providing better protection for our livestock populations; tracking the health and vaccination status of herds would be possible; it would also help with risk assessment for international trade, which is very important to Alabama's agricultural industry.

Animal ID is not new in the United States. In the 1940's, the federal government initiated a program to identify cattle tested for the eradication of brucellosis. Since brucellosis has almost been wiped out, that system of tagging is being phased out. However, certain classes of livestock still must be identified before they can enter the market.

Most people in the animal agriculture industry recognize that finding a potentially sick or exposed animal early in a disease outbreak is essential to containing a disease quickly. A national animal ID system would allow for rapid tracing of animals in the case of an outbreak, helping to limit the scope and cost of such an outbreak. Knowing the source of a disease can help tremendously with prevention and containment measures that are so important to protecting our livestock and ourselves. This most recent case of BSE has shown us how badly we need a tracking system in place. If this had been a highly contagious disease such as avian influenza, how quickly would we be able to trace the disease back to the source?

Right now, any state animal ID programs are voluntary, but soon the USDA may require it to be mandatory. In preparation to help farmers with this transition, the Alabama Legislature has already passed a bill that would make any information collected about their farms confidential. After the Dept. of Agriculture and Industries asked for an amendment to make it clear the program is currently voluntary, the bill was sent to the Governor who signed it into law just a few weeks ago.

I became concerned about clarifying this part of the bill after my office received many calls from concerned farmers who had been confused by the

HB 254 Signed into Law

Commissioner Ron Sparks thanked Governor Bob Riley for signing HB 254 into law on April 17, 2006. This law provides that information gathered by the Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries for the animal identification database for the United States Department of Agriculture's National Animal Identification System will remain confidential. Premises ID Registration has been implemented in the last year and Animal ID Registration is not far behind. The information on premises and animals is to protect the interest of public health, safety, and welfare.

The bill contained an Executive Amendment from Governor Riley at the request of Commissioner Sparks. The additional language was added to ensure that it is clear that the law would not implement a mandatory animal identification program in Alabama and that the program would not be mandatory until it is required by federal regulations. The law is intended to keep information collected in the program confidential to protect the privacy of those who participate.

"I want to thank Representative Blaine Galliher and Senator Zeb Little for sponsoring this bill," said Commissioner Sparks. "Keeping our producer's and farmer's information private has proven to be an effective way to encourage participation in our voluntary program in Alabama; and participation means we are able to better protect our consumers and our agriculture industry."

Alabama Fire Ant Management Program Appreciation Award

The Alabama Fire Ant Management Program presented an award of appreciation to Commissioner Ron Sparks and Senator Jack Biddle for continued support of their program at Auburn University. The Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries has helped provide funding for educational and research programs for management of imported fire ants in Alabama through the legislature. Fudd Graham, Coordinator of the Fire Ant Management Program, expressed his gratitude to Commissioner Ron Sparks and Senator Jack Biddle for being instrumental in securing funding for the program.

Sparks Welcomes Korean Delegation

Commissioner Ron Sparks welcomed agricultural specialists from Korea who are here to learn about Alabama's cattle industry. The visit is the result of a renewed interest by Korea in importing US beef. The guests include: Jong-Hern Lee, the Chief of the Korea Animal Improvement Association, Kiyoon Chang, DVM, MS the Senior Veterinary Officer with the Korean Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry, Byung-Joon Chang, DVM, PhD a professor at Konkuk University's College of Veterinary Medicine, and Yong Keun Ban an agricultural specialist with the United States Embassy in Korea. While in the Alabama, they will meet with Alabama Department of Agriculture & Industries and USDA officials, visit area farms, examine local herds, and learn more about what measures are in place to protect consumers. "We appreciate them making the trip to Alabama to find out more about our cattle industry," said Sparks. "Alabama ranks 14th in cattle production in the nation. We consider it an honor to have them visit and hope that they will become comfortable with what they learn here. It is the Department of Agriculture's responsibility to make sure that our food is safe for our consumers. We want Koreans who eat Alabama beef to feel just as secure as we do about it here in Alabama."

A dedication ceremony will be held for the Thompson~Bishop~Sparks State Diagnostic Laboratory in Auburn, Alabama on Tuesday, May 9, 2006

APT COOKING SHOW SPOTLIGHTS ALABAMA MAY 20TH

Alabamians can find new ways to cook and eat healthy foods on Alabama Public Television this year by tuning into COOKING FRESH WITH CURTIS AIKENS on the afternoon of MAY 20th. This new one-hour special featuring southern Chef Curtis Aikens will focus on the wealth of fresh produce and foods raised by Alabama farmers. The acclaimed Chef Curtis has appeared on shows such as "Oprah!" and was one of the first hosts on the FOOD NETWORK. The show will take viewers into the kitchen with Curtis and out into the field to see where his Alabama-grown ingredients are harvested. Specifically in this episode, Curtis will visit three local Alabama farms: Snow's Bend Farms, an organic vegetable farm, Bay Boy Farms, a shrimp farm and Chilton County peach grower Burnette Farms. Make sure to tune in to learn several tasty dishes made with all Alabama foods.

Product Spotlight

This month we are featuring Howton Farms Gourmet Sauces as our product spotlight. Steve Howton, owner of Howton Farms, starting making his delicious barbeque sauce in 1995 while on a quest to develop the perfect rib sauce. The demand for his sauce by friends and family became overwhelming so he introduced it to Alabama consumers, and the business has grown into what it is today.

Howton Farms Gourmet Sauces come in a wide variety of flavors and tastes. For less heat there are a couple of choices including Southern Belle Sweet and Mild. For more of a kick, Howton Farms offers Southwestern flavor, Hot, Barns A Bunin' which is five times hotter than hot, and Farmhouse Napalm which is the hottest sauce they currently produce. Howton Farms also produces an Original All Purpose Rub, Southwestern Rub, and Beer Can Chicken and Pork Basting Sauce. Howton Farms Sauces are spicy, yet always smooth and never overpowering. Howton Farms takes extra care to make the healthiest product possible adding no artificial flavors, colors, sugars or MSG, and the sauce has no fat or cholesterol either. Due to its superior quality, Howton Farms Sauce has won several awards from the National Barbeque Association including 1st place for its All Purpose Rub and Mild Barbeque Sauce. Howton Farms is located on Keel Mountain in Gurley, AL and can be ordered online at www.HowtonFarms.com or by calling 256/776-3761.
